Yahoo Mail

Re: Got to see it to believe it!!!

j
To:  · Fri, Dec 26, 2025 at 12:51 PM

Message Body

Go Knights! This is encouraging news. Now if Christians will turn off their football games for at least the first half and give that over to God, Americans can be transformed. Three hours out of the Sunday Sabbath for football for tens of thousands of people is just too much idolatry. This is a step in a good direction, but it is also like lip service, because football is a violent and prideful sport that consumes the time, energy, money and passions of millions of people in America on Sundays which the Christians claim to be their Lord's Day Sabbath. The Lamb of God would be dead on the field before half-time if he were set on the 50 yard line at the beginning of the game. It is a little like the Mafia attending church and confession and then going out after to "rub out Vinnie the Tomato." But it could be the start of a beautiful relationship, if it is not simply a visually spectacular hypocrisy. Are their hearts changed by the rosary? Do they still want to smash other men with killer force after they pray it? Will their egos say that they are better and more blessed people if they win the game than if they lose? That is what I am asking. When they pray the rosary and then walk off the field, refusing to finish the "game," then I will be truly impressed. Let them and their "fans" quit the game and return those three Sabbath hours to their Lord, their families, their churches, and their communities. That is my rosary prayer. If they can't do it 100 percent because they are so addicted to the adrenaline drama play that is football, then try it half-way to start: let "Christians" join the game during a half-time prayer and give at least an hour-and-a-half back from the useless first half to real life and not devote it to this fantasy, football. God is a jealous God-King who desires zealous citizens in His Mighty and Holy Kingdom.

Amen! Thanks for sharing. By the world's measures this is a miracle. God says, Nice play, but can you finish the game? Do you have a deep bench of belief? Will you commit many fouls? This is simply a bit of what we have owed God for a long, long time. It could be the start of a beautiful relationship,though...

Original e-mail/trigger for my reply:

Knights of Columbus on Instagram: "Led by Supreme Knight Patrick Kelly and Archbishop William E. Lori, more than 250 Catholic cadets and midshipmen prayed the rosary at halftime of the Army–Navy Game—witnessing faith, service, and brotherhood.

